THE PACIFIC

Commercial Adbertiser.

SATURDAY. NOVEMBER 27. WHEN WE ventured the prophecy in these columps a few years since that the time was approaching, and not very distant, when there would be a telegraph cable across the Pacific, we to the country, and it will be doubly desirable were looked upon as visionary dreamers. But the official announcement of the cruise of the United States steamer Tuscarora for the purpose of discovering an advantageous route for a cable in these waters, is a sign of genuineness and persistance in the project which indicates its eventual success. A cable from San Francisco to Australia, with a branch to Japan and China, will soon become a commercial necessity, and will complete a literal belt around the globe that shall communicate intelligence with electrical rapidity. The adventurous spirit of the age will not be content until this long cherished dream is opinion of Judge McKean in the celebrated case by new appointments, in order to bring the mem- 1-2 In. Surfaced Redwood Planks. of Ann Eliza against Brigham Young. Some time since our Reverend Friend and neighbor | Constitutional limit of twenty. The announce- 1x6 In. Tongued & Grooved R. W. Flooring criticised the opinion; but we believe that, like | ment of the selections to fill these will be looked many another critic, he had never seen the thing criticised. It appears by our late advices that Brigham is under arrest again, for not complying with the order of the Court and paying Ann E. O. HALL & SON 1 In. Rough Redwood Boards,

The opinion will prove interesting reading. It derees temporary alimony only, and by no manner of means does it justify or support polygamy.

but the contrary. It appears that Ann Eliza sets forth in her complaint that she was duly married, and then proceeds to state such grounds for a divorce as any woman might reasonably urge. Brigham idmits the marriage, but pleads its invalidity on account of a previous marriage of Ann Eliza to me James L. Dee, and his own previous mariage with one Mary Ann Angell-both said mariages being still subsisting, neither the woman's ausband nor his own wife having died or been livorced. The marriage having been admitted, he judge says, in effect, that it remains for Brigham to make good the facts necessary to his lefense; and, in the meantime, Brigham must upply the wife which he acknowledges he volun-

arily took, with the means of living. Well, Father Friend; (to speak after the maner of men) "how is that for high?" Ought a can to be allowed to take a wife, and then avoid Il responsibility in the matter by simply aledging the unlawfulness of his own act?

THE PACT has recently been pointed out that in the Act of 1874, (Chapter 56) "To Restrict the Sale and Importation of Opium," no summary urisdiction is conferred on Police and District can only commit for trial by the Supreme Court for probable cause. This was by no means the intention of those who procured the passage of the Act, and it is only one of several instances commenced with a voluntary on the organ, followed The barks R C Wylle for Bremen and the Mattle Macleay . that may be cited of careless legislation during by the reading by the Rev. Mr. Frear of President the session of 1874. Chapter 4, "An Act con- Grant's thanksgiving proclamation; singing-" Ye cerning marriages of Hawaiian women with Chi-nations round the earth rejoice;" reading the scripnamen," has been declared unconstitutional by ture; prayer by the Rev. Mr. Frear; singing-hymn the Supreme Court, as being of the nature of 1328. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. class legislation; and so has Chapter 51, in re- Damon, from Job 8:8-" For inquire, I pray thee, gard to divorce. By the latter, the cumbersome of the former age, and prepare thyself to the search divorce law of 1870 was repealed, and the law of of their fathers;" and Ecclestastes 7:10-"Say not 1866-to permit divorced persons to marry again -was re-enacted; but nobody in the Assembly appears to have paid sufficient attention to the business before them to perceive that they were leaving the country without any divorce law at all. But this was the result, until the October term of the present year, when a case having brought the subject to the official attention of the Judges of the Supreme Court, the law was promptly set aside as contrary to public policy and unconstitutional. Another anomaly of the laws of the last session is found in the fact that while Chapter 38 amended the law in regard to the sale of opium, whereby one license was and the arts, and Christianity has widely increased granted at not less than $16,000 a year, Chapter 56 of the same session laws strictly prohibited the importation and sale of the drug by any one > outside the Board of Health. These specimens of the careless and slipshod legislation of the last session will suffice to show what we may expect next year under like conditions, and should the foreign element in our population continue to decline taking an active part in the election of Representatives. Clearly enough, foreign capital, through the operations of which about all the trade and productive industry of the country is carried on, is entitled to a fair representation in the making of the laws for the execution of which it is taxed; but this it has not had for quite a number of years past. Formerly—we may say from ten to twenty years ago,-there might always be found from ten to twelve foreign-born subjects in the House of Representatives, who gave a tone and character to our legislation which is not to be seen at the present day. We call to mind the names of W. L. Lee, G. M. Robertson, J. F. B. Marshall, and Theophilus Metcalf, among many others, educated foreigners domiciled here, who sought and readily obtained the suffrages of the people, and their record forms an honorable page in the history of

That there have been few or no foreigners elected of late years to the Legislature, is the result of several causes. One is unquestionably found in the fact that they as a body have taken less interest in the internal affairs and government of their island home, and less identified ves .- Salled from Honolulu December 16th, 1874, and cruised | former years. The lines of distinction too between the races, have become more strongly defined of late years, and the natives have come to feel that their interests and those of the foreigner are by no means identical. It is not our purpose here to inquire how far this has been the natural result of the acts of foreigners themselves; the fact remains that the feeling exists to a great extent. Then there was the unfortunate discussion about the proposed cession of a harbor which is not a harbor, -an issue that was created and exploded solely among ourselves-and which has left an unpleasant bias in the general native Hura, Dec 4th, 1874, Jap schr Snowdrop, Taylor, master; mind, but which bias with poetical justice, attaches as well to those who by their agitation inspired the sentiment of suspicion in the natives. Then again, the Hawaiians who have come upon the stage of life since the days of Lee and his contemporaries, are as different in many respects from their predecessors, as though belonging to a different race. While generally better edu-FROM HUMBOLDT—Per H W Almy, Nov. 24th: -220,552 ft | cated, they are more opinionated and self-asserting, less easily controlled, and, we are sorry to say, less inclined to respect the authority of law or of superiors than the Hawaiians of twenty or thirty years ago. In the battle of life side by side with the foreigner, they find that they often fall with the foreigner, they find that they often fall for the sail and retained opposite. against what they regard as fate. But our subject has led us into a digression and towards a disquisition not contemplated at the outset. For the present we will leave this branch of the subject, with the remark that it is quite in the power as it is the bounden duty and the interest of foreigners residing on these Islands to rekindle and cultivate the once almost universal but now smouldering sentiments of sympathy and confidence between the races. No people are more susceptible to kindly influences than the Hawaiians; none are quicker to detect and to inwardly brood over and resent an intentional slight

To return to the main thought that underlies this subject of legislation-it is apparent that the next session will be one of grave importance that those who are to exercise a controlling influence in the deliberations of the Assembly should be men of intelligence, experience, and a fair degree of ability. Unless the elections in February next are allowed by those who have a right to be heard to go by default, it may be possible to secure the return in several districts of members who will go into the House to work for the good of the nation at large, and not merely for the petty pay or the expectation of future emolument. There is besides a prerogative in the hands of the Crown which, discreetly exercised as we feel assured it will be, may leaven the whole lump of legislation. There are now some six or WE PRINT on the fourth page of this issue the seven vacancies in the list of Nobles to be filled bership of that branch of the Assembly up to the

Thanksgiving Day.

In responses to an invitation by the American Minister Resident, a pretty large assemblage of ladies and gentlemen was gathered at the Fort street Justices, so that in all cases under the Act they | Church on Thursday morning last to participate in the thanksgiving services of the day. His Majesty the King occupied a seat in the congregation, accompanied by Col. W. F. Allen of his staff. The services thou, What is the cause that the former days were better than these? for thou dost not inquire wisely concerning this." After briefly alluding to some of the reasons why residents at the Islands should be thankful--among which were the assurance of reciprocity and the prospect of more intimate relations with the outside world, and the happy return of our King from abroad,-the speaker said that the atmosphere is redolent of centennial memories. The principal events of 1775 in American and throughout the world were reviewed, and an interesting retrospect was given of the men and women of note who lived and flourished one hundred years ago. The world has wonderfully progressed since then in science its influence in the affairs of men everywhere. In reviewing the political and religious aspect of the world to-day, in connection with the promises of God's word, there is ground for the assurance of a glorious future. Some sentences of Grant's speech to the Army of the Tennessee were quoted, and the sentiments were declared to be truly noble, brave and Christian, and fully in accordance with the American theory of government. Like the exordium, the peroration of the discourse was eloquent, well chosen and forcible. The services concluded with singing "My country, tis of thee," and prayer by the Rev. Dr. Damon. During the day, we noticed that some stores and places of business were closed, and among many families the traditionary roas goose (or turkey) and apple (or plum) pudding was
